To Truedem, missjayde, badgebunny33, and other well-meaning animal love

Christine was arrested at my house, while I was out of town. She had been s rabbit, Vinny, a 6.5-year-old Rex who was originally hers. He and his buddy, live with me last summer, at Christine's request. She realized then that havir two rabbits in one small house was too much for her-- and for the rabbits, w previously accustomed to a stress-free lifestyle.

For what it's worth, Fufu passed away last October, but not before I forked o veterinary care, without hesitation, trying to save him. Rest assured that Vin good life, primarily indoors, in a good home where he is well loved. I'm a reg the House Rabbit Society's website, and am fully familiar with the special die environmental needs of adult pet rabbits. (I will, of course, be looking for a c

Contrary to what was logged in the police report, and subsequently published articles, Christine did not move in here. She reportedly told the arresting offi staying here while her water was cut off, which he interpreted to mean that I current address.

This error has since been corrected by the Clerk of the Court, but not before concerned citizens posted my address to this forum-- in the context of other: extreme penalties and even vigilante justice. I spent all day on Friday and m weekend dealing with the fallout from that.

As for Ella, I'm still completely flabbergasted. Along with others, I helped Chi proofing her house before Ella arrived last spring, and I later sat for her whilk out of town for more than a week. Ella was a beautiful, wonderful dog with a endless supply of puppy energy and enthusiasm.

For those who know Christine, none of this makes sense. She had asked for . help with pets, in the past-- both with Ella, and also with the rabbits, as I rel Why that didn't happen this time is a mystery.

I'm sorry if I can't give you the answers that you're all seeking in coming tog forum. Ultimately, I suspect that there could never be an answer that would us. I'm completely at a loss, in more ways than I know how to express.

Don't Panic! Don't Panic! What exactly does that mean. Does it mean that yo Roommate, are telling yourself not to panic or that we, the enraged public, s over the senseless, cruel, intentional, heartless inhumane torture that this pr animal endured.

I suggest to you, Mr. "Oh S Their After ME" roomie, that you worry more us, the humans of the world that feel we have an obligation to make someth of this tradedy, than about yourself and the problems you have brought to d your head in the sand where this female is concerned.

Did you ever ask her "Oh, by the way, Where's Ella".

I can't sleep at night due to the atrocity that your friend visited upon Ella.

Come up with a solution to help us all get through this, Mr. Roomie, lose the attitude. The victum here was Ella, not you.

Mom's mad:

Read the article: she was animal-sitting at his house, not his roommate. How about you direct your anger towards the person who is responsible, not animal-loving friend of hers. He isn't responsible for her actions - only she is. More importantly, he isn't responsible for pets in her care - only SHE is. If YC commits cruelty to an animal, should I hold YOU responsible, since as a frien have been omnipotent and known it would happen? Get real. NONE of this is
